A Grand Festival of Melodies: Historic Inter-House Singing Competition at Mother Theresa CBSE School

Lingapuram (Muthukur), Chittoor District: Guiding the creative abilities of young minds beyond the world of books and letters into the infinite skies of art and music, a magnificent Inter-House Singing Competition was staged at Mother Theresa School - CBSE (Affiliated to CBSE, New Delhi) in Lingapuram, Chittoor District, Andhra Pradesh. Operating under the aegis of Mother Theresa Institutions, the school campus echoed throughout the day with the magical expressions of music. Alongside academic knowledge, this musical extravaganza was organized as a golden opportunity to discover the latent artistic talents within students, polish them, and present them before the world.

From early morning, the school courtyard carried the vibrant aura of a grand festival. The enthusiasm and confidence on the face of every contestant proclaimed the truth that music is an invisible magical thread that binds human hearts together. Beyond a mere competition, Mother Theresa School transformed into a glorious confluence of friendship, teamwork, and rhythm.

The event was planned on an expansive scale, encompassing both Solo Singing and Group Singing categories.

The lifeblood of this musical festival was a spirited artistic battle among the four houses that symbolize the four great forces of nature. Ignis, donned in red with the radiance of fire; Ventus, dressed in yellow with the speed and vitality of wind; Terra, in green representing the patience and lushness of earth; and Aqua, in blue symbolizing the calmness and depth of water, were the four houses that competed on the musical stage. As students dressed in uniforms of four distinct colors lined up across the school courtyard and auditorium, it turned into a breathtaking visual spectacle. Every performance witnessed on stage was the fruit of months of rigorous practice and dedication by each child to uphold the pride of their respective house.

The Solo Singing competitions, staged as the first phase of the event, literally left the audience spellbound. From tiny tots in the lower grades to senior students, participants showcased their vocal sweetness before the microphone, each outshining the other. When a young girl in a yellow uniform representing Ventus House sang with immense confidence and emotional depth, the audience sat in pin-drop silence, completely immersed in the melody. Similarly, the moments when a girl in the green attire of Terra House closed her eyes and delved into the very soul of the music won high praise from both the judges and teachers.

The vocal sweetness of the girl in red representing Ignis House, along with the rhythmic rendition by the boy in the blue uniform representing Aqua House, intensified the competition in the individual category. It is no small feat that these young artists managed to convey the deeper meanings of their songs through expressive facial nuances without faltering before such a massive audience. The thunderous applause that echoed through the auditorium as each child finished singing was a true testament to their talent.

Following the solo events, the Group Singing competitions elevated the excitement of the program to the skies. Through their performances, the students proved the magic that unfolds when multiple voices blend into a single rhythm and pitch. The musical feast presented in the school courtyard by students coming together from various houses was soothing to both the eyes and ears. As the lead singers rendered the verses through the microphones and the backing vocalists echoed them in unison, the performances were reminiscent of seasoned professional choirs.

The group singing performance by Ventus House stood as a symbol of their unity. When a group of nine boys and girls lined up on stage and sang in one voice, the students in the audience encouraged them by clapping and keeping beat. In another segment, the vocal excellence displayed by an all-girls group from Ventus House was equally remarkable. Rendered with simple expressions yet powerful vocal harmony, their song captured everyone's heart.

The blue brigade of Aqua House was not far behind. Comprising both boys and girls, the Aqua House team took the stage with utmost discipline and confidence. The songs they sang, coordinating through eye contact and synchronized rhythm, proclaimed the rich musical spirit of Aqua House. Meanwhile, the group song presented by four girls in red from Ignis House stood out for its sheer melodic grace.

Evaluating the competitions was a highly challenging mission for the judges. Teachers with deep knowledge in the field of music served on the judging panel. The judges recorded their scores after meticulously observing the students' pitch accuracy, sense of rhythm, clarity of pronunciation, song selection, stage presence, and harmony in the group performances. Because every performance was outstanding in its own right, the judges had to spend considerable time determining the winners. The energetic words and interventions of the teacher who anchored the event played a major role in keeping the audience's enthusiasm alive until the very end.

The students seated in the audience were just as deserving of appreciation as the contestants themselves. Hundreds of students sat with exemplary discipline across the spacious school courtyard and auditorium to watch the competitions. The encouragement they offered through cheers and applause whenever their housemates stepped onto the stage was immense. At the same time, the sportsmanship spirit shown by the students of Mother Theresa School in wholeheartedly applauding the stellar performances of rival houses became a direct reflection of the values nurtured by the institution.

Behind the success of such a wonderful event lies the collective effort of the management and teachers of Mother Theresa CBSE School, who give equal importance to arts and sports alongside academics. Such inter-house competitions greatly help in overcoming stage fright among children, moulding them into strong leaders, and helping them find mental joy through art. At the conclusion of the competition, the judges and teachers evaluated the performances, addressed the gathering, and showered all the talented participants with praise.

This musical rain created together by the four houses—Ignis, Ventus, Terra, and Aqua—has already become one of the most beautiful chapters in the history of Mother Theresa School. The curtains fell on the singing competition with warm wishes that these young artists may grace even grander artistic festivals in the years to come.

A Step Towards a Healthier Future; Mother Theresa CBSE School Organizes a Comprehensive Awareness Session for Girls

Lingapuram (Chittoor): Mother Theresa CBSE School (A Unit of Mother Theresa Institutions, Affiliation No: 130687), located in Lingapuram, Chittoor district of Andhra Pradesh, organized an extensive awareness class aimed at nurturing the physical and mental health as well as the self-confidence of girl students. This special session was held upholding the inspiring message, "Healthy Habits, Hygienic Choices, Confident Girls — A Step Towards a Healthier Future!". The primary objective of the program was to empower the growing generation of girls through good habits, personal hygiene, and self-care (Empowering Girls through Good Habits, Hygiene & Self-Care).

In the ceremony held in a packed school auditorium, teacher Ananya Biju Ma'am led the main awareness class. Syamala Ma'am provided precise leadership and guidance for the smooth conduct and coordination of the program. Through the event, the teachers emphasized that alongside academic studies, it is the need of the hour to provide girls with accurate awareness about their health and hygiene. Numerous girl students from various classes participated in this session with great enthusiasm and interest.

Engaging Class Presentation by Ananya Biju Ma'am Using Visual Media

Ananya Biju Ma'am delivered a simple yet deeply impactful presentation on how to structure a healthy lifestyle in daily life. Rather than a mere speech, the class progressed with the help of a projector, attractive illustrations, and slides. This method was highly beneficial in helping even the younger children quickly visualize and understand the topics. In the section addressing personal cleanliness (Good Hygiene Habits), Ma'am spoke in detail about the necessity of keeping hands clean at all times. Using images on the large screen, she demonstrated to the children how dirt and germs accumulating under fingernails can cause various illnesses, and emphasized the need to trim and keep nails clean regularly to prevent this.

Furthermore, practical measures to prevent contagious diseases and infections were also discussed in the class. Through slides, the students were taught the importance of covering their mouth and nose with a handkerchief, tissue paper, or elbow while sneezing or coughing ("Cover your mouth when coughing or sneezing - Use a tissue or your elbow to stop germs from spreading"). Ma'am explained how this small habit helps prevent germs from spreading to others through the air. The class also strongly emphasized the need to avoid junk food, eat nutritious meals, sleep on time, and drink plenty of water. Through Ananya Biju Ma'am's session, the beautiful message of "Stay Healthy, Stay Happy" was successfully instilled into the minds of the children.

Exemplary Leadership and Value-Based Guidance by Syamala Ma'am

The role played by Syamala Ma'am in the planning and successful execution of this awareness program was immense. From the beginning to the end of the session, Syamala Ma'am was actively present, motivating the students and giving them the necessary instructions. She reminded the girls that they must stand tall in society and that maintaining their own health and hygiene is the very first step toward self-confidence. Ma'am paid special attention to removing the hesitation and anxiety among adolescent girls when it comes to speaking openly with teachers or parents about their physical changes and health concerns.

She urged the students to cultivate mental purity and positive thoughts alongside external physical cleanliness. The message that girls should be role models in respecting elders and showing compassion to fellow beings was conveyed to the students through the words of the teachers and the illustrations of elders displayed on the stage. Syamala Ma'am's leadership skills were well reflected in bringing hundreds of children of various age groups under one roof and focusing their complete attention on the class. The collective effort and coordination of both Ananya Biju Ma'am and Syamala Ma'am made this awareness program deeply meaningful.

Self-Care and the Self-Confidence of Girls

Great importance was given in the class to the main theme of the program, 'Self-Care'. The core of this segment was to enable girls to love themselves and respect their own bodies and minds. Through examples, the teachers explained how paying attention to personal cleanliness and dressing enhances an individual's self-confidence. The children were made to understand how a neat uniform and disciplined behavior beautify a student's personality. The students were given a clear understanding of the freshness and energy that the body and mind receive when daily routines, from waking up in the morning to going to bed at night, are performed with strict discipline.

Alongside academics, the children were trained to avoid mental stress and approach situations with a smile and a positive attitude at all times. The session pointed out that developing the habit of doing one's own tasks from a young age enables girls to face any situation courageously in the future. It empowered girls to avoid things harmful to health in daily life and to consciously choose hygienic habits beneficial to the body (Hygienic Choices). This session underlined the fact that when a girl becomes healthy and confident, it becomes a stepping stone toward a healthier future for both the family and society as a whole.

Enthusiastic Participation and Response from Girl Students

The most notable aspect of the event was that the class transformed into an active interactive platform between the teachers and the students. The children eagerly came forward, raising their hands with enthusiasm to answer the questions posed by the teacher and to clarify their doubts. From the younger primary classes to the senior girls, everyone participated in the session with equal curiosity and interest. Both the junior students dressed in white uniforms and ties, and the senior students wearing various house uniforms such as yellow, blue, red, and green, assembled in the auditorium with utmost discipline.

When the proper ways of washing hands and keeping nails clean were explained, the children raised and inspected their own hands along with the teacher to understand the concepts firsthand. As the class progressed, the smiles and confidence on the faces of the children proclaimed the success of the session. The students unanimously assured that they would adopt the good habits learned from this class into their lives starting today, and share this valuable knowledge with their family members and friends.

Mother Theresa School Takes an Exemplary Step; Conclusion

Ananya Biju Ma'am's graceful and engaging class presentation, combined with Syamala Ma'am's excellent leadership, turned into an unforgettable experience for the children.

The school management and teachers announced that similar follow-up classes and awareness sessions conducive to the physical and mental growth of children will be organized in the school in the coming days as well. The girl students departed from the awareness class with resounding applause and immense self-confidence.

Young Minds, Healthy Futures: Primary Health Centre Visit Becomes a Novel Experience for Mother Theresa School Students

Chittoor (Andhra Pradesh): Opening up a vast world of practical knowledge beyond classroom textbooks, the students of Mother Theresa School - CBSE, Lingapuram, visited the Primary Health Centre. On September 26, 2026, students from Mother Theresa School—a unit of Mother Theresa Institutions located at Muthukur Post in Peddapanjani Mandal—embarked on this educational field trip. The visit was organized around the inspiring theme, "Young Minds, Healthy Futures". The primary objective of this trip was to instill health awareness and hygiene habits in children from a young age, while giving them an opportunity to witness and understand healthcare operations firsthand.

The timely and coordinated intervention of the School Principal, Mr. David Bercmans, who always extends strong support to the school's academic and co-curricular activities, made this visit a reality. By communicating with the health centre authorities in advance, he ensured all necessary arrangements were in place for the children to observe and learn about the hospital's functioning directly. The students travelled from the school to the Primary Health Centre under the complete leadership and supervision of teachers Samyuktha Ma'am, Sruthi Ma'am, and Sravani Ma'am. Along with ensuring the safety of the students, the teachers took special care to clearly explain every sight and process to them.

Upon arriving at the premises of the Primary Health Centre, 'Manogya Mandir', the students and teachers were welcomed with great warmth and enthusiasm by the hospital staff and doctors. The front facade of the health centre, adorned with colourful wall paintings and a clean environment, sparked immense curiosity among the children. Dressed in red, blue, green, and yellow uniforms representing the school's various houses and wearing their ID cards, the children visited each department of the hospital with great discipline. They also gained a basic understanding of the operations of the Sanjeevani Tata Digital Nerve Centre, which functions alongside the Primary Health Centre.

The children were taken to various wards and examination rooms in the hospital, where the lady Medical Officer personally explained the daily operations. In the newborn care section, the doctor briefed the students on the modern medical equipment used there. She demonstrated the functioning of the 'Neokraft' Radiant Heat Warmer, a device that helps maintain the proper body temperature of newborn babies. The young students looked on with great curiosity at the machine, which was set to a temperature of 36.8 degrees Celsius. In simple language, the doctor also explained the care required from the moment a baby is born and the importance of vaccinations.

Subsequently, the students walked through wards displaying posters of the 'LaQshya' programme, which focuses on care for pregnant women and mothers, as well as charts illustrating the proper steps of handwashing. Standing around the green-draped hospital beds, the children listened as the doctor explained inpatient treatment procedures and first aid provided during emergencies. Witnessing the various stages of care given to a patient from the moment they arrive at the hospital increased the children's respect for doctors and nurses. With the help of their teachers, the students also read and learned about various health security schemes implemented by the Department of Health, Medical and Family Welfare from the wall charts.

Another major highlight of the visit was touring the hospital's laboratory (Testing Area / CSR Testing). The lab technicians directly demonstrated how blood, urine, and other samples are tested to diagnose diseases. Key laboratory instruments such as the Centrifuge, Microscope, and Urine Analysis systems were specially displayed there. Pointing to the charts in the lab, the technician explained how microorganisms and blood cells are observed through a microscope, and informed the students about normal levels of Haemoglobin (Hb), White Blood Cells (WBC), Platelet count, and Blood Sugar in a human body. Learning how specimens are collected in compliance with National Quality Assurance Standards was also a great educational insight for the students.

Marking the conclusion of the educational visit, the lady doctor at the Primary Health Centre was honoured on behalf of Mother Theresa School for dedicating her valuable time to share knowledge with the students. Wearing the school's black blazers and ID cards, teachers Samyuktha Ma'am, Sruthi Ma'am, and Sravani Ma'am draped a ceremonial shawl around the doctor to express their respect and gratitude. That moment stood as a tribute from the school to healthcare workers who toil day and night to protect public health. Finally, the students took a group photo with their teachers and the hospital staff on the health centre premises before departing.

This visit proved that such field trips can transform textbook lessons into real-life experiences. The trip became a great source of inspiration for many young minds to aspire to become doctors and healthcare professionals in the future. When the vision of Principal Mr. David Bercmans combined with the collective efforts of teachers Samyuktha Ma'am, Sruthi Ma'am, and Sravani Ma'am, the students of Mother Theresa School received an unforgettable life lesson.

Second Phase Parent-Teacher Meeting (PTM-II) Held Grandly at Mother Theresa CBSE School: Teachers and Parents Join Hands for the Holistic Development of Students

Lingapuram (Chittoor District, Andhra Pradesh): The second phase of the Parent-Teacher Meeting (PTM-II) for this academic year was organized with extensive arrangements at Mother Theresa CBSE School, Lingapuram, which operates under Mother Theresa Institutions and is affiliated with the CBSE Board, New Delhi (Affiliation No: 130687). This special gathering for parents of students from Nursery to Grade XII was held on Saturday, October 31, 2026, from 9:00 AM to 5:30 PM. The school management and teachers designed this program around the noble themes of "Together for a Brighter Future" and "Communication Builds Stronger Futures".

School and home play an equal role in a child's character formation and academic growth. Continuous communication between teachers and parents is essential for raising the academic standards of children and identifying and nurturing their innate creative talents. Located in Lingapuram, Muthukur Post, Peddapanjani Mandal in Chittoor District of Andhra Pradesh, Mother Theresa School is an institution that always places great emphasis on value-based education alongside academic excellence. Organized as part of this vision, the second phase PTM (PTM-II) became an excellent platform to evaluate the progress achieved by students in recent months and to plan academic strategies for the upcoming months.

The flow of parents into the school campus began right at 9:00 AM. Hundreds of parents from the rural belt and surrounding areas arrived at the school with great enthusiasm to inquire directly about their children's academic progress. The schedule, stretching from 9:00 AM to 5:30 PM, provided parents the opportunity to speak peacefully with teachers without any rush. This extended timeframe was also very helpful for working parents to attend comfortably on time.

Comprehensive Evaluation from Nursery to Grade XII

The academic standards of students, ranging from the little ones in Nursery classes to Grade XII students in the senior secondary section, were evaluated through specially arranged counters in each classroom. In the pre-primary and nursery sections, teachers primarily focused on children's foundational language skills, aptitude for numbers, behavior toward peers, drawing, and artistic or sports interests. Since young children learn through play and practical activities, teachers spoke in detail about the support parents need to provide them at home.

Moving on to primary and upper primary classes, basic understanding of subjects, reading habits, handwriting improvement, and children's interest in mathematics and science became the main topics of discussion. Files and project works of children from each class were neatly and systematically kept in specially arranged cupboards and lockers inside the classrooms. The safe storage of academic records for various subjects, including English, in cabinets marked sequentially such as numbers 8 and 9, reflected the excellent administrative discipline of the school.

Meetings with parents of high school and senior secondary (Grades X, XI, XII) students were more intensive. Teachers presented before each parent the specific study strategies, time management skills, and performance in model exams required for students preparing to face the CBSE board examinations. By directly examining the children's answer sheets, progress reports, and files, teachers clearly explained where students were losing marks in each subject and what measures needed to be taken to rectify them.

Active Classroom Discussions and Direct Interaction

Rather than holding a general assembly and dispersing, the greatest highlight of this meeting was that every child's parent had the opportunity for one-on-one interaction with the class teacher and subject teachers. A major sight across classrooms was teachers picking up and reviewing files placed in front of them one by one, convincing parents of their children's academic progress. Students also participated alongside their parents in these discussions. The children listened directly to the evaluations made about them by their teachers and parents, gaining self-awareness about the improvements needed in their studies.

Classrooms were decorated with beautiful charts and learning aids. Yellow charts drawn and prepared by the children themselves about various parts of the computer and technology, displayed on the classroom walls, won the praise of parents. Such arrangements in the classrooms served as proof of how much the school encourages the creative talents of its students. The teachers listened to the concerns of parents with great gentleness yet complete professionalism.

Co-Curricular Activities and Mental Well-being

Beyond marks in examinations, there are numerous factors required for a student's personality development. It was with this realization that the teachers at Mother Theresa School interacted with the parents. Teachers shared their observations regarding children's ability to concentrate in classrooms, cooperation with classmates, leadership qualities, and discipline.

Teachers also created awareness about things parents need to pay attention to at home to reduce the increasing mobile phone usage among children today and to divert their attention toward reading and sports activities. Teachers reminded parents not to compare their children with others, but rather to recognize and encourage each child's unique talents. Parents attention provided at the school for students who are lagging behind in studies.

Responses and Suggestions from Parents

A very constructive response was received from the parents during this meeting organized by the school authorities. Parents opined that through this meeting, they were able to directly understand how closely teachers observe even the smallest changes in their children. Parents wholeheartedly praised the teaching methods, discipline, and safe environment of the school.

At the same time, parents spoke openly with teachers about their children's study habits at home and their behavioral traits. Parents brought the difficulties experienced by children in certain subjects to the notice of the teachers. Accepting this very positively, the teachers assured that more training would be given to the children in such subjects in the coming days. The school management also took special care to record the valuable suggestions of parents to make the school's operations even better.

Excellent Organization and Stepping into the Future

felt great relief and happiness upon learning about the special remedial classes and individual

The collective effort of the Lingapuram Mother Theresa CBSE School management, principal, and teaching and non-teaching staff made this second phase Parent-Teacher Meeting such a grand success. Volunteers and staff were actively present to provide accurate guidance to all the parents who arrived for the program, which lasted from 9:00 AM to 5:30 PM.

This gathering conveyed the strong message that education is a triangular process involving teachers, students, and parents, and if any one side weakens, it affects the growth of the child. The institution always takes care to accurately deliver information regarding school activities and admissions (+91 9490745656) to parents through the school's official website, www.mtischool.edu.in, and social media platforms.
